

INR Goal Range

Sometimes people need to control how much or how fast their blood clots. There are certain tests that can help people know if they are controlling their blood clotting correctly.

These tests will tell us how fast or slow your blood is clotting. This is known as your “INR level.”

As a team, our mission is to keep your INR level within your “goal range.”

Each person is different. Your doctor will discuss your goal range with you.

It is very important that you know your INR goal range and the current dosing of warfarin that you are taking.