

Definition: T-Cell

T cells are a type of white blood cell. They are also called T lymphocytes.

These cells help your immune system fend off infections like viruses. They also help fight cancer.

A cancer treatment called immunotherapy makes T cells better at finding and killing cancer cells.

Want to know more about T cells and their role in cancer treatment? Talk with your care team. They are here to help.