

How to Choose the Right Measuring Cup

Did you know that not all measuring cups are the same?

There are two types: dry and liquid.

Liquid measuring cups are single cups with measurements on the side.

The markings don't go all the way to the top which helps you measure the exact amount without spilling over the edge.

Dry measuring cups come as a set. Each cup measures a specific amount, so you can fill and then flatten across the top to get the correct amount.

Choosing the right measuring cup will help your recipes turn out their best.
